- Provided below:

The comments received by the Authority were targeted at the availability and affordability of rental housing in the St. Albans market. A sample of those comments are reproduced below:

“It’s hard to find one-bedroom units, period. I found only three during the time I looked [a month and a half] that were still available by the time I got there.”

“There’s a shortage of three-bedrooms, not just for Section 8.”

“There weren’t any I could afford [without the Authority’s help]; mighty hard to rent without income. I couldn’t find any. You found me this one.”

“Section 8 is flexible and OK now; it wasn’t when I first rented. I mean, it’ll pay up to a high enough price now, but when I first rented the limit was so low it was hard to find a place; not it’s right up there.”

“One of my big issues is asking the landlord, telling him I’m on Section 8. My problems is that when you tell a landlord they think immediately “trash” and figure that Section 8 goes hand-in-hand with trouble.”

“My landlord was good about it and most people are good about accepting it. For on e thing, there are benefits with Section 8 and the landlord knows it.”

3. In what manner did the PHA address those comments? (select all that apply)
