Goals and Objectives. Identify the PHA's quantifiable goals and objectives that will enable the PHA to serve the needs of low-income and very low-income, and extremely low-income families for the next five years. Include a report on the progress the PHA has made in meeting the goals and objectives described in the previous 5-Year Plan.

Our top goals include expanding the supply of subsidized rental units by applying for additional vouchers while increasing the overall quality of these units through improved inspection techniques. Efficient voucher management as measured through SEMAP scores is another important priority.

We are committed to increasing the housing choices available to families receiving rental assistance. Potential new landlords are recruited through public announcements in targeted newspapers and ETHRA staff members are available to answer questions and offer solutions to interested property managers. These marketing efforts are especially emphasized in higher-income areas to broaden the opportunities for HCV families. Mobility counseling ensures that voucher holders are informed of the possible benefits of transferring a voucher to more economically advantageous areas. Studies have shown that increasing a family's access to employment and education greatly increases the chances of becoming truly self-sufficient.

Helping as many families as possible obtain economic self-sufficiency is another important goal. We are committed to increasing the number of employed individuals and first-time homebuyers through our Family Self-Sufficiency and Homeownership programs. Over the next five years, we plan to help at least eight more families reach economic self-sufficiency through homeownership and we are committed to helping another eight families earn and receive funds from FSS escrow accounts as their FSS goals are met. Effective coordination of needed services and a commitment to recruiting efforts are paramount to making these programs successful.

ETHRA makes every effort to promote the principle of equal housing opportunity for all of our clients and we work to ensure that no one is denied housing on the basis of race, color, national origin, sex, familial status, or disability. This begins with an emphasis on regular and complete training for all staff members on regulations regarding housing discrimination. All clients receive information on equal housing opportunity and are encouraged to report any possible violation of these laws to ETHRA staff members immediately.

We accommodate families with special needs by conducting in-home briefings and re-certifications when clients are unable to visit our office due to a disability. Our landlord listings include specially designed accessible units and we actively work with landlords to ensure that all families are able to have adequate housing suitable for their needs.

Finally, we continue to focus on improving the overall quality of the Housing Choice Voucher program at ETHRA. Ongoing training is emphasized for staff members at every level. This includes the completion of industry-recognized certifications for housing personnel.

All aspects of the program, from property inspections to the processing of paperwork, are subject to ongoing quality control to ensure superior results. A strong culture of positive customer service is emphasized and encouraged throughout the agency.

Housing Needs. Based on information provided by the applicable Consolidated Plan, information provided by HUD, and other generally available data, make a reasonable effort to identify the housing needs of the low-income, very low-income, and extremely low-income families who reside in the jurisdiction served by the PHA, including elderly families, families with disabilities, and households of various races and ethnic groups, and other families who are on the public housing and Section 8 tenant-based assistance waiting lists. The identification of housing needs must address issues of affordability, supply, quality, accessibility, size of units, and location.

Many of the sixteen counties served by ETHRA's Housing Choice Voucher Program suffer from very significant levels of poverty. In particular, six counties have poverty rates between sixteen and twenty percent and four other counties have rates in excess of twenty percent. According to the Tennessee Consolidate Plan, "housing problems are intimately tied to the household income level. Almost eighty percent of the lowest income households, those with income below thirty percent of the local area median income, are subject to housing problems, most of them being burdened severely by their housing cost." While the number of substandard units has steadily declined over the last fifty years, overcrowding has remained a problem for large households in the rental market. No other housing problems faced by lower income families are as strong and prevalent as unaffordable housing cost burdens.

Both the elderly and disabled face high incidents of housing problems, including affordability issues. It is estimated that 44% of the disabled and 40% of the elderly who rent face housing problems (page 20). Statistics show that the higher incidence of housing problems among the elderly and disabled can be attributed to the higher number of low-income families among these two groups. Eighteen percent of the very low income elderly have a rental cost burden that exceeds half of their total income. Over one third of the extremely low income elderly have a rent burden exceeding fifty percent of their income.

Minority households tend to face greater housing problems. According to surveys conducted for Tennessee's Consolidated Plan, rent burdens are higher for African-American, Native American, and multi-racial households (page 22). For example, almost forty percent of the African-American rental households have a rent burden of at least thirty percent and half of these families pay over fifty percent of their income for rental expenses.

Although the overall number of substandard units has declined throughout the years, too many Tennessee households must deal with substandard and/or overcrowded living conditions (page 9). For example, almost 27% of the very low-income families with five or more members live in substandard/overcrowded conditions.

Past economic growth in some areas has led to a "crowding out" effect on many low-income families, forcing them farther and farther from areas of economic opportunities (page 29). High transportation costs often offset any savings gained from renting in less-expensive areas.

Other barriers to affordable housing include public attitudes often resistant to new developments aimed at low-income families. Regulations and zoning restrictions often further limit new construction and rehabilitation.

9.0

Strategy for Addressing Housing Needs. Provide a brief description of the PHA's strategy for addressing the housing needs of families in the jurisdiction and on the waiting list in the upcoming year. Note: Small, Section 8 only, and High Performing PHAs complete only for Annual Plan submission with the 5-Year Plan.

ETHRA uses several important strategies to help families cope with housing needs. First and foremost, we seek to help as many qualified families as possible by maintaining a high voucher utilization rate. We will also apply for additional vouchers from HUD as they become available.

To help the most vulnerable of the renting population, we plan to exceed the HUD-mandated minimum goal of reserving at least seventy-five percent of the newly issued vouchers for extremely low-income families. Our estimates show that approximately ninety percent of the families who are admitted to the program will fall within the extremely low income levels. Since the elderly and disabled are often over-represented in this group, they too will benefit from this effort.

Minority families often face housing problems more frequently than the overall population. By emphasizing Fair Housing training for all staff members and making families aware of their rights under federal and state anti-discrimination laws, we are able to help minorities find housing that meets their needs.

Access to areas with enhanced economic opportunities is a problem faced by many families receiving rental assistance. Our efforts to recruit landlords with properties located in counties offering higher employment levels and greater educational options have increased the number of HCV units in these areas. In addition, we regularly review our payment standards to ensure that the rents we are able to pay are high enough to allow families to find homes in these areas.

Additional Information. Describe the following, as well as any additional information HUD has requested.

- (a) Progress in Meeting Mission and Goals. Provide a brief statement of the PHA's progress in meeting the mission and goals described in the 5-Year Plan.
- (b) Significant Amendment and Substantial Deviation/Modification. Provide the PHA's definition of "significant amendment" and "substantial deviation/modification"

ETHRA was able to meet or exceed the most important goals of the past Five Year Plan. The number of allocated units increased from 646 to 726 and a growing number of the assisted rentals are located in areas of relatively higher income, increasing our families' access to employment and education.

Twenty participants have graduated from the Family Self-Sufficiency Program. Over $36,213 was paid to these families from escrow accounts established as their earned income increased. Furthermore, ten of these families became first-time homebuyers, with two able to purchase a home without any further assistance.

Our goal of emphasizing continuing education for all staff members was also met. Every home inspector has earned nationally-recognized certifications as Housing Quality Standards Specialists. Several staff members have also completed the Housing Voucher Specialist training.

10.0

(B) Significant Amendment and Substantial Deviation/Modification

"Substantial Deviation from the Five-Year Plan" would include a change to the Mission Statement or a change (or deletion) of a goal included in the Five-Year Plan.

"Significant Amendment or Modification to the Annual Plan" would include changes to rent or admission policies and changes to the organization of the waiting list.

Violence Against Women and Department of Justice Reauthorization Act of 2005 (VAWA)

All clients are informed that the VAWA legislation "protects qualified tenants and family members who are victims of domestic violence, dating violence, or stalking from being evicted or terminated from housing assistance based on acts of such violence against them." When appropriate, ETHRA takes every action needed to ensure that these victims receive the protections granted under this law.
