GREETINGS FROM THE ADMINISTRATOR

Greetings!

The Public Trust. As recipients and custodians of publicly funded projects, ONAP Grantees are given a fiduciary responsibility to spend the public's money wisely and for the purpose for which it was appropriated. This is one reason why the Office of Native American Programs exists. The Office of Native American Programs is not here just to disburse the money to grantees under NAHASDA, but also to make sure that grant money is spent on housing and housing related infrastructure with all the attendant costs such as administration and maintenance for existing housing that goes along with it. Letting people know about your, and their, obligations is important to your mission. Moreover, by being transparent, you can build trust in your operation and in how you operate for the betterment of the tribal housing community.

The use of Social Media - Websites: Websites can be enormously useful for your operation as more and more Tribal members gain access to the Internet because a website can provide them with a great deal of information that they would have to otherwise get from your staff. After giving a brief overview of the Tribal Housing/TDHE mission a website can be useful in both publicizing your mission and making it easier to carry out.

By publicizing the Median Family Income [MFI] limits at 80 and 100% for your service area, along with a brief explanation of who is eligible for services, applicants for tribal housing can know whether they are income qualified for a unit and what size. This is a good reason for publicizing your rental structure and keeping it updated so that prospective tenants know what they can expect to pay when they apply. Remember that all rents are updated by HUD annually when the Fair Market Rent [FMR] for their county is published usually in the spring of each calendar year. In addition, a website assists the applicant by making a blank application available for download, or even a fillable form, which they can complete at home, prior to them showing up in your office. This saves on postage and the time of your staff preparing packets to be mailed, which could be better spent on dealing with applicants and tenants. Some of that will always be needed, but the time savings by having them prefill forms and other documents can be enormously helpful and serve tribal members who live far away and are moving back to the reservation or service area, without forcing them to make a long drive to your office.

Other things that can be listed on the website are your policies on drugs, pets, alcohol use, criminal background checks or meth screening, including new policies that the Board or Council is considering adopting. Forms that are commonly used can be put online including fillable forms the applicant or tenant may need to file if you annually recertify rents, need to have work done via a work order to repair broken items such as appliances, broken windows, replacing doors etc. or requests to add household members to the lease and update their application. Its is also a good place to list Community Center policies and booking forms.

Use of Facebook: Social media is a form of media that can be used to publicize anything from available vacancies to announcing new programs such as college housing assistance, which is usually far from the Housing Office. It should be changed from time to time to keep people's interest in your new or ongoing projects such as village clean up, snow plowing policies, when you are mowing grass or inaugurating a new building such as a Veterans Housing Center, Community Garden, Solar Panel project, Day Care center, community center, boys and girls club or any ICDBG project. Tribal members like any community member like to see themselves or their relatives engaged in a project sponsored by the Tribe or TDHE. These are important to build good will and to encourage people to be proud of their community. So if you award a family for the best kept yard or some similar project, don't be shy about putting it on your Facebook page. Remember people love pictures and practically every Tribal employee and member has a camera phone to gather those important pictures.

Twitter: While some of us are newcomers to Twitter and don't feel the need to say much, it can be a useful tool, especially in emergencies so long as you have developed a following which can be linked to your website or Facebook page. As a former Executive Director, we regularly used Facebook but Twitter could be even more targeted to alert people of emergency situations. In one village, manholes were annually removed for a few hours by Tribal public works and we would alert tenants for the protection of their safety so they wouldn't drive/or walk into it. In another village, an alert was sent out that a black bear was sighted in their village and in another locality an alert for local flooding could be sent. Even planned power outages or emergency outages such as when a tornado watch or warning is given by the National Weather Service or that a blizzard is heading their way are all good and important ways to get news out to your tenants and community members.

Hopefully these are some good ideas to help you publicize your mission and improve your operations.

We at EWONAP wish you a Safe and Happy Holiday Season from our staff to yours.

Mark Butterfield, EWONAP Administrator

HUD Imminent Threat Grants Program Guidance Published

Program Guidance 2018-04 summarizes the Indian Community Development Block Grant (ICDBG) Imminent Threat (IT) program including the funding criteria for application procedures and examples of applications that could be funded. This guidance supersedes Guidance 2017-01(R), Imminent Threat Grants. For a full list of the requirements, please read the Program Guidance in its entirety.

PURPOSE: This Guidance summarizes the Indian Community Development Block Grant (ICDBG) Imminent Threat (IT) program including the funding criteria for application procedures and examples of applications that could be funded. This guidance supersedes Guidance 2017-01(R), Imminent Threat Grants.

BACKGROUND: The Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) is authorized to reserve a portion of ICDBG funds for IT grants. IT grants are intended to alleviate or remove imminent threats towards health or safety. The threat to be addressed must be such that an emergency exists or would exist if the threat was not addressed. The grants must address threats of an urgent nature that were not evident at the time of the ICDBG single-purpose funding cycle, or that require immediate action. The amount of funds reserved for IT each year is included in the ICDBG Notice of Funding Availability (NOFA).

The grant ceiling for IT grants are: $450,000 for disasters that are not Presidentially-declared and $900,000 for Presidentially declared disasters, also referred to as Major Disaster Declarations by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA). The regulations for the program can be found at 24 CFR Part 1003, Subpart E. IT grants are provided on an as-needed basis until all funds have been awarded. The applicant does not need to wait for the annual ICDBG NOFA to be published before requesting IT funds. If an urgent situation arises in your tribal area, IT funds might be able to address it. However, the request must be made within a reasonable amount of time after the event or discovery of the threat.

CRITERIA FOR AWARDS: IT grant funds can only be used to address threats that require an immediate action or solution. The threat must be unique, unusual and at a minimum, affect the entire community.

APPLICANT ELIGIBILITY: Tribes and tribal organizations may apply for IT grants if they meet the definition of such entities in the ICDBG regulations at 24 CFR §1003.5. Eligible applicants are any Indian tribe, band, group, or nation, including Alaska Indians, Aleuts, and Eskimos, and any Alaska native village of the United States which is considered an eligible recipient under Title I of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act (25 U.S.C. 450) or which had been an eligible recipient under the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972 (31 U.S.C. 1221). Eligible tribal organizations under the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act will be determined by the Bureau of Indian Affairs and eligible recipients under the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972 are those that have been determined eligible by the Department of Treasury, Office of Revenue Sharing. Tribal organizations must submit a copy of their eligibility determination with the application unless they have already submitted such to HUD. Eligible recipients must be identified on the most current Federal Register listing of “Indian Entities Recognized and Eligible to Receive Service from the United States Bureau of Indian Affairs.”
